

June, 2010

Crazy Cotton Candy

by Shelly Hazard

Print 'n' Play Text
and Table of Results

The carnival has come to town! For the holiday weekend, a traveling carnival has come to Millersville for the long weekend. Friday night, five friends got their parents to drive them to the carnival for the evening. Meeting up by the roller coaster, the five friends spent the night riding rides, playing games, and eating carnival food. Their favorite food was the cotton candy booth – and it was crazy candy! With most cotton candy, if you get grape, the cotton candy is colored grape, strawberry is red, lemon is yellow, and so on. Well, at THIS cotton candy booth, strawberry might be purple and grape might be pink! None of the flavors had the expected colors. Determine the full name of each friend, what cotton candy flavor each ordered, and what color cotton candy each received.

1. Peter, whose last name wasn't Wyant, didn't buy the grape cotton candy.
2. Alec bought the blue cotton candy. Herb didn't buy the strawberry flavored. The boy whose last name was Weatherby bought the lemon flavored cotton candy.
3. Elliot West didn't get orange flavored or colored cotton candy. The raspberry flavored wasn't green.
4. Mr. Williams bought the yellow cotton candy. The boy whose last name was Woods bought the strawberry flavored cotton candy but it wasn't blue.
5. Ryan, whose last name wasn't Weatherby, bought the raspberry flavored cotton candy but it wasn't orange.
6. The orange flavored cotton candy was pink.

First Name	Last Name	Flavor	Color

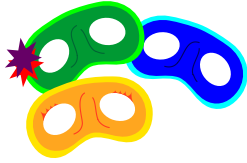

June, 2010

Print 'n' Play Grid

Crazy Cotton Candy

by Shelly Hazard

	Weatherby	West	Williams	Woods	Wyant	grape	lemon	orange	raspberry	strawberry	blue	green	orange	pink	yellow
Alec
Elliot
Herb
Peter
Ryan
blue
green orange pink yellow
grape
lemon orange
raspberry strawberry															