

LogicProblems

Puzzles
COM

MONTHLY INTERACTIVE & PRINTABLE

January, 2006

Olympic Ice Dancing (bonus) Print 'n' Play Text and Table of Results by Shelly Hazard

Sally always looks forward to the Olympic ice dancing trials. This year, the competition was fierce and there were many outstanding ice dancing couples. The free style routines, which allowed the ice dancers to make up their routines without any specific performance requirements, could be no longer than 3 minutes. As it happened, each of Sally's favorite teams used one style of music, each different from the others, for their freestyle routine, instead of the more common compilation of musical styles. Determine the names of each couple (one name was Arnold), the type of music their freestyle routine featured (one was rock music), and how long each freestyle routine was (one was 2.60 minutes).

1. Mark, who didn't dance to the waltz, had the shortest routine, which was 2.50 minutes. The couple that skated to a country song had the longest routine, which was 2.90 minutes.
2. George skated with Gracie. The couple who skated to the rumba danced for 2.70 minutes.
3. Zachary's routine lasted longer than Karen's routine but was shorter than Marcelyn's routine.
4. Frederick danced to the tango.
5. Allison skated to the waltz. Frederick, whose partner wasn't Heidi, danced for a longer time than George.
6. Marcelyn skated with her partner for 2.80 minutes.

First Name	First Name	Music Style	Time

January, 2006

Olympic Ice Dancing (bonus) Print 'n' Play Grid

by Shelly Hazard

	Allison	Gracie	Heidi	Karen	Marcelyn	country	rhumba	rock	tango	waltz	2,50	2,60	2,70	2,80	2,90
Arnold
Frederick
George
Mark
Zachary
2,50
2,60
2,70
2,80
2,90
country rhumba rock tango waltz															