Saturday was a big day for yard sales – the weather was gorgeous and people from all around town had yard sale signs out before their homes. Many were tempted to stop and many items found new homes that day. Five people in particular were very pleased with their purchases as each got a piece of furniture in good shape and at a very good price. Determine the full name of those five people, what each of them bought (each bought one item), the price each paid for the item ($8 to $20), and the color of each person's car.

- Ms. Reed didn't buy the bookshelf, but she did pay more than the woman who drove the white car. The person who bought the trunk paid less than the one who bought the bureau, but $3 more than the woman who drove the red car.
- The most paid was $20, which wasn't paid by Melony. The lamp sold for the smallest amount, but Emma didn't buy it.
- The five women are represented, from lowest paid to highest paid, by Mrs. Bailey, the woman who drove the white car, Melony, the woman who bought the trunk, and the woman who drove the blue car.
- Ms. Harp, whose first name wasn't Wilma, didn't buy the trunk. The person who bought the bookshelf paid three dollars more than Sara, whose last name wasn't Reed.
- Kristin didn't have a last name of Pike. Emma, whose last name wasn't Harp, didn't drive the green car nor did she buy the coffee table. Wilma's last name wasn't Jones but she did spend $18 on her purchase.
- The woman who drove the black car bought the trunk. Mrs. Jones drove the white car. Wilma's last name wasn't Pike.
