

Eleven spacepods are visible on this snapshot from the space. Can you draw as few straight imaginary lines as possible on the snapshot so that there are eleven enclosures each containing exactly one spacepod in it? The lines can cross each other.

The solution is shown in the illustration.