

Grocery Shopping

by Shelly Hazard

June, 2004

Print 'n' Play Text and Table of Results

Even though she forgot her shopping list, Harriet spent the morning grocery shopping for her family. Being the forgetful sort, forgetting her list was not that unusual, just a bit inconvenient. Although she didn't usually have too much trouble with the grocery shopping because her four kids accompanied her and were used to reminding her when she forgot something. For their help, she always let each of the children add one favorite food to the cart. This week as a special treat, she took them all out for ice cream on the way home. Determine the name of each child and the favorite food each selected, what each child helped their mom remember, and what flavor of ice cream each child got in their ice cream cone.

1. The child that got mocha almond ice cream also had peanut butter cookies. Peter remembered the paper towels.
2. The girl who remembered the roast beef got coffee ice cream. Cindy got blueberries for her favorite food.
3. Barry didn't get the chocolate bar. Rose didn't like coffee ice cream.
4. Peter didn't have peanut butter cookies but he did get strawberry ice cream.
5. Cindy didn't remember that her mom needed to buy bread. Barry didn't get the vanilla ice cream.
6. Barry didn't remember the carrots. Rose didn't like graham crackers or mocha almond ice cream.

Child's Name	Favorite Food	Forgotten Item	Ice Cream Flavor

LogicProblems

Puzzles
.COM

MONTHLY INTERACTIVE & PRINTABLE

Grocery Shopping

by Shelly Hazard

June, 2004
Print 'n' Play Grid

	Blueberries	Chocolate bar	Graham crackers	Peanut butter cookies	Bread	Carrots	Paper towels	Roast beef	Coffee	Mocha Almond	Strawberry	Vanilla
Barry
Cindy
Peter
Rose
Coffee
Mocha almond
Strawberry
Vanilla
Bread
Carrots
Paper towels
Roast beef												