

Ice Sculpture Art Show

by Shelly Hazard

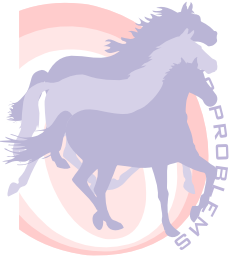

January, 2006

Print 'n' Play Text and Table of Results

As part of the New Year's Festival, Millerstown featured an art show of ice sculptures on the town green. The sculptures ranged in size from that of a lap dog to an enormous block of ice featuring a complete castle with a dragon hovering over it. The sculptures were judged by the mayor, chief of police, and the president of the town garden club. The townspeople also got to cast a vote for the most popular award. Determine the full name of each winner, the award each won, and the subject of the sculpture of each winner.

1. Miranda Foster's sculpture won the most creative award. Veronica's last name was not Smith.
2. The whimsical sculpture featuring a cat peering into a goldfish bowl won the most popular award. The running horses sculpture won first place, but Arthur didn't carve it.
3. Todd Bailey didn't carve the sculpture of the running horses.
4. One of the men won the best of show award for his antique car sculpture.
5. Arthur, whose last name wasn't Whattle, didn't carve the blooming roses.
6. The five artists who won awards were the woman who carved the cat & goldfish bowl, Chester, the man who got the honorable mention, the person who carved the dragon & castle sculpture, and the person whose last name was Mulkin.

First Name	Last Name	Name of Award	Subject of Sculpture

Ice Sculpture Art Show

by Shelly Hazard

January, 2006
Print 'n' Play Grid

	Bailey	Foster	Mulkin	Smith	Whattle	best of show	first place	honorable mention	most creative	most popular	antique car	blooming roses	cat & goldfish bowl	dragon & castle	running horses
Arthur
Chester
Miranda
Todd
Veronica
antique car
blooming roses
cat & goldfish bowl
dragon & castle
running horses
best of show
first place
honorable mention
most creative most popular															